

Prof. Berger Wolf heads to "MARS" for an out-of-this-world adventure

For the third year, Amazon, Blue Origin and its CEO Jeff Bezos handpicked roughly 200 attendees from the field of machine learning, automation, robotics and space exploration to create (and spell) MARS, a three-day conference in Palm Springs, CA attended by some of the leading minds in their respective fields. The UIC Computer Science Department's own Prof. Tanya Berger-Wolf was invited this year and provided us with a few personal pics from her adventure.

The Blue Origin Crew Capsule awaits its next passenger

Prof. Berger-Wolf getting suited up for a trip to infinity and beyond!

Jeff Bezos of Amazon and Blue Origin speaks with guests at MARS conference

Prof. Berger-Wolf grabs a pic with Industrial Designer and TV personality Adam Savage of Myth Busters fame

"At MARS, Jeff Bezos Hosted Roboticians, Astronauts, Other Brainiacs and Me"

Check out a detailed pictorial overview of the MARS conference by Jack Nicas of the New York Times

The New York Times
READ STORY